ABOUT GIML

The Gordon Institute for Music Learning (GIML) is dedicated to the advancement of research on audiation, pioneered by Dr. Edwin E. Gordon. The purpose of the Gordon Institute for Music Learning is to advance music understanding through audiation. We believe in the music potential of each individual, and we support an interactive learning community with opportunities for musical and professional development.

MUSIC LEARNING THEORY

Music Learning Theory is an explanation of how we learn when we learn music. Based on an extensive body of research and practical field-testing by Edwin E. Gordon and others, Music Learning Theory provides the music teacher a comprehensive sequence for teaching musicianship through audiation, Gordon's term for hearing music in the mind with understanding.

EDWIN E. GORDON

Edwin E. Gordon is widely remembered as a researcher, teacher, author, editor and lecturer. He and his work have been portrayed nationally on the NBC Today Show, in the New York Times, and in USA

Today. Through extensive research, Professor Gordon has made major contributions in the study of music aptitudes, audiation, music learning theory, tonal patterns, rhythm patterns and music development in infants and very young children. He is the author of six highly regarded music aptitude tests, in addition to numerous books, articles and research monographs.
