

If one audiates, then one must have audeas.

The GIML Audea is a great place to share audeas.

GIML

The Gordon Institute for Music Learning (GIML) is a nonprofit organization dedicated to advancing the research in music education pioneered by Edwin E. Gordon. The broad purpose of this Institute is to ensure that Dr. Gordon's work realizes its potential to serve as the foundation for future research and to revitalize music education for generations to come. The Institute supports research into how individuals learn music through research in teaching teachers, in teaching parents and in teaching students of all ages.

Guidelines for Article Submission

1. Manuscripts for possible publication should be double-spaced, 2-10 pages in length, in Times New Roman, font size 12. Use tabs before each paragraph only and no other formatting procedure.
2. Each manuscript should be submitted electronically to the publications chair in a folder that includes the abstract (150-200 words), up to 5 keywords, the author's bio (two sentences), and a photo. The first sentence in the bio should state your job title and the name and location of your school. The second sentence should list one or two research interests. The photo should show your head and shoulders and have a dark background. The folder should also contain any illustrations to be included with the article; such as, music notation, diagrams, tables, and figures.
Each supporting figure should be an individual file. All graphics: pictures, diagrams, musical examples, must be in tiff format, and with a minimum of 1200 dpi resolution; any text in the graphic should be in Arial font. Do NOT include titles or headings in the picture. All tables and graphs must be submitted as Word or Excel files.
3. Placement and titles of illustrations should be noted through the use of labels within the text of the article.
4. Quoted music and materials must be cleared in writing with copyright holders prior to submission. Copies of letters and contracts granting permission to print copyrighted material must accompany the submitted article or be sent by hard copy to the publications chair.
5. Bibliography should be written according to style recommendations found in the latest edition of the Publication Manual of the American Psychological Association; however, do NOT use tabs or indentations. Direct references within the text should include name of author, date of publication, and page number, and be placed as endnotes after the Bibliography.
6. Send all related materials to Diane Lange at lange@uta.edu.
7. The editor reserves the right to edit all copy submitted to the GIML Audea. Manuscripts requiring revision may be returned to the author for revision.

Submitting a manuscript indicates that it has not been published previously (including on the internet) and is not currently submitted for publication elsewhere, either in its entirety or in part. Authors are expected to comply with APA ethical standards and institutional and federal regulations in the treatment of human subjects (see <http://www.apa.org/ethics>).

Audea, the official publication of GIML, is issued to GIML members two times each year. Publication information and inquiries should be addressed to:
